Removal of Incompletes

An incomplete must be removed within the first half of the semester after the student returns to college. If the work is not made up by that time, the incomplete automatically becomes a failure unless special extension of time is granted by the faculty.

Campaign week began immediately after the close of the candidates' speeches. A new regulation states that all posters hung on bulletin boards must be of regulation size. Those hung elsewhere may be larger.

KNOW YOUR ADVISOR...

Freedom from many of the restraints necessary in high school is stimulating to individual development in college. A college student usually develops an increased sense of responsibility in such matters as planning his own curriculum, study habit, regularity in class attendance, with an advisor ready to assist at any time.

As long as he uses this freedom for his own growth and development, he will encounter little restraint from the college.

Make a friend and confidant of your advisor so that he may be helpful to you in your academic endeavors. It is he who helped to plan your course during registration, and you may have seen him during the past week to make a change from an overcrowded laboratory section to a smaller one.

If you have a job, your advisor has probably cautioned you about losing perspective and devoting so much time to the job that you handicap yourself as a student. Most students, while not called upon to beg, like the medieval scholar, find it necessary to do without some luxuries while in college. The habit of curbing some of one's needs seems to contribute to one's development.

You were advised at registration time to choose an academic goal and stay rather closely to a given curriculum, so that you may build an orderly, coherent body of knowledge. Even if you plan only two years of college, you will then have a definite answer to a prospective employer's question of, "What can you do?"

If you plan four years of college, you must present a good body of full-year sequences, with at least a C average to transfer as a junior to a senior college.

If you get discouraged or lose spirit, see your advisor. Even financial troubles are usually not insurmountable if you are seriously interested in college. Cultivate the habit of persistence and enjoy your freedom to develop.

A CORRECTION...

It has been brought to our attention that we have inadvertently caused some degree of confusion in the minds of students because of the Roundup's editorial of October 6, captioned "Are You Going to Flunk?"

In quoting the catalog on BJC regulations regarding probation and dismissal, we deleted the following important paragraph which reads:

"A student may be denied permission to re-register in the college for a third semester if, after two consecutive semesters, his cumulative grade-point average is 12 points below a grade-point average of 2.0. This calculation is made by multiplying by two the total credit hours in which he has been enrolled and subtracting 12. If the answer so obtained is not exceeded by the student's total quality points, he will be subject to this regulation. Permission to re-enter will be denied by the dean of the faculty on the recommendation of the scholarship committee."

Vets' Certificates Due Monthly

The nation's half-million veterans in training under the Korean GI bill can save themselves a lot of trouble and delay if they take the time to mark the first of each month on their calendars with the reminder: "GI Certificate Due Soon."

The Veterans Administration explained today that this is a monthly certification of class attendance that must be signed by the veteran and by a representative of his school, and sent to VA promptly after each month of training completed.

Generally the school will require the veteran to sign the form shortly after the first of the month; sometimes the veteran will have to give the school a quick reminder.

Under the law, VA must have signed certificate before it will send a veteran his monthly allowance check. If the certificate doesn't come in, the check won't go out. If the certificate is late, the check will be late.

Hence VA's suggestion to mark the calendar to be sure that certificates are sent in on time.

PUBLICITY RULES THE WORLD MARKET . . .

Checkout counters and scores of shelves stacked with attractively packaged products are unknown to shoppers in many foreign countries. Little stalls in crowded market places, such as this shopping area in the Near East are the customary "stores" abroad. Here, a housewife purchases cactus fruit, a delicacy in that country.

Publicity Stunts Are Put To Use By Industry All Over The World

Ever since Joshua discovered the potency of the big noise at Jericho, people have been using fanfare and ballyhoo to grab the world by its ears. To sell a product, win a war or simply call attention to themselves, various masters of the publicity stunt have hitched elephants to plows and registered lions at plush hotels, dropped "diplomas" behind enemy lines and even "bombed" Los Angeles with perfume. (One movie publicist went so far as to buy six skeletons from a New York City hospital and hire six Harlem "canibals" to dance around the remains in an exclusive suburban area. But the stunt misfired when the police—phoned, of course, by the public-spirited press agent—found that the alleged snacks still bore their hospital identification tags!

What were the biggest, brassiest, most successful publicity stunts of all time? Publicists themselves differ on this point.

The Biggest Showpiece on Earth

P. T. Barnum, the high priest of hoopla, always had an affinity for elephants. By having one of his pachyderms plow a field in plain sight of a passing railroad train, he reaped a rich harvest of free advertising for his American Museum. At the height of his career, he went on to bigger and better beasts, acquiring Jumbo, world's largest elephant and the pride of the British Empire, from the Royal Zoo in London. For three years, the animal lumbered lucratively before capacity audiences. In 1884 a collision with a locomotive ended his glorious career. What would have been the end of the story for most impresarios was only the beginning for Barnum. He released a story describing how Jumbo had saved another elephant's life by heroically shoving it off the tracks and absorbing the train's full impact himself. The massive martyr was then stuffed, placed on a dolly and wheeled about by his "widow," a female pachyderm draped in black. Jumbo became a national hero—and thousands paid admission to pay their respects.

Come Back Little Pigeon

Some years ago, an eagle-eyed press agent took on the task of publicizing an eyeglass defogger. In Washington, D.C., he outfitted 100 pigeons with tiny spectacles. Half the cheaters had been wiped with defogger, half had not. Reporters as well as birds flocked to the take-off point, and the New York-bound flight received wide press coverage. So did the final score: 50 "defogged" pigeons reporting in, as against only two non-users of the product. So did Moran's cheerful admission of the hoax: the homing pigeons who flew in for a Manhattan landing were actually released from a few blocks away. Taking no chances, Moran had bought his Washington pigeons from the dime store. They had no homing instinct whatever.

Several tournaments will be held this year, including the National Association's tournament in Stockton, California, and the College of the Pacific's National Junior College tournament to be held at the University of California.

In addition to competing in tournaments, Phil Dolph is giving a monthly tele-lecture.

Let your debate team travel to Aberdeen, Washington, Salt Lake City, Utah, Lynwood, and two tournaments in the fall.

Debate is open to anyone. Students who are interested may come to the BJC from 7 to 9 p.m.

CAMPUS STYLES

By Sharon Paul

Just lately I have learned some strange facts. Do you know that people who have left apples on the ground under their trees to ferment have seen birds get completely looped after taking a few bites? If your parakeet comes home walking on his wings and singing "Zippity do da," you'd better put a sign on your apple tree, "No Diners Allowed."

Do you know sheep begin to lose their teeth at the end of six years? Do you know sheep's wool outlasts the sheep, especially the wool used in Darlene sweaters and Tammy skirts at C. C. Anderson's?

These are beautiful match mates. One of the long-sleeved sweater styles sells for only $6.98 and comes in many strikingly vivid colors. The lower-priced matching skirts sell for $11.98. You can't beat buys like this, and Anderson's has a whole rack of different skirt and sweater styles. One beautiful shade of green caught my eye especially. There's something about vivid colors that really brightens up a winter day. Better go look!

I.C.A.C. Adopts Wrestling in 1959

Wrestling was officially adopted by the ICAC conference in their spring meeting this year. Previously some of the Utah schools had been practicing the sport on a limited basis. This will be the first year that BJC has attempted a wrestling team.

Ray Lewis has been 'tabbed' as the possible coach for the squad.

The wrestling team will travel with the basketball squad to the schools and plans call for wrestling bouts in the afternoon, with basketball at night.

Meets will probably begin in February, with the conference tournament set for March 4-5 at the College of Southern Utah.

Broncos Drop First Conference Tilt; Lose To Carbon Eagles 13-7

The Carbon Eagles rose up Saturday night to whip Boise Junior college 13-7 in a stunning intermountain conference football upset. The loss snapped Boise's 12-year victory streak in the conference.

Ironically, the first time Boise lost to an ICAAC foe was in 1946 when the Broncos fell to Carbon by the same score. BJC wasn't a conference member in 1946, and after the Broncos joined the ICAAC in 1947 they didn't lose to a conference foe until Saturday night. BJC had won 19 conference games and lost none before Carbon entered the picture. Rocky told the Broncos to a 26-26 tie in 1954.

It was sweet revenge for the Golden Eagles, who had lost to Boise last year 51-0. The win was Carbon's second in the series which which started in 1940. BJC has won 10. The Eagles outmanned Boise all the way, but had to score both touchdowns in the final period.

A bad pass from the Boise center gave Carbon the ball on the Boise 16 early in the fourth period. Frank Lago made six yards on the run.

Then Larry Lee flipped a yard pass to Gilbert Fletcher who leaped high in the air to make the catch. Fletcher's kick was good, making the score 7-0.

Boise scored its touchdown in the second period when Grant Hall intercepted a pass on the Eagle 30 and went to the 17. Two line plays netted six yards and then Jim McChafferty threw a pass to Dave Eagle good for 11 yards and the touchdown. Paul Bryant's placement was good.

Carbon's Joe Bertonielli set up the Eagles' second touchdown in the final three minutes of the game. He recovered a Boise fumble on the Boise 45.

After a series of plays, Lee scampered 33 yards on a quarterback booting play down the sidelines and scored the touchdown. Fletcher's kick missed, but Carbon had the victory.

Boise made a desperate attempt on the final kickoff, but time ran out on the Broncos.

Carbon drove to the Boise one-yard line in the third period, but Boise recovered a fumble in its own end zone for a touchback to end the threat.

Coach Lyle Smith's Broncos made several cracks at the Carbon goal, but each time the threat died. The deepest BJC penetrations, outside of the TD, were to the Carbon eight, 15 and 20.

It was Carbon's first victory of the season. Boise was the 1958 national junior college football champion.

Coach Dick White of Carbon said his team "just outplayed them." He said Carbon's blocking and tackling was sharper than that shown by Boise.

Smith said that "Carbon deserved the win. We just couldn't keep our drives going. They wanted to play football and just outplayed us."

Lineman of Week

Left Guard . . .

Larry "Red" Lundin, a 195 lb. left guard, was outstanding in both defensive and offensive play during the Weber game.

Larry, who plans to go on to Idaho State college, is a graduate of Filer high school, where he played four years of football, won his letter three times, and was captain of the team.

Back of the Week

Fullback . . .

Jerry Mahoney, 185 lb. fullback from Lewiston, who was chosen an outstanding player of the Tyler-BJC game for the NJCAA championship, has been an exceptional player this year for the team. Although injured early in the Weber game he stayed in and did a fine job as defensive linemen. Jerry will be out because of this knee injury for an indefinite period, and BJC will be sorely pressed for a replacement.
